200,000 Little Red Schoolhouses' Still Exist Despite Consolidations.

BOSTON, July 5—The cult of the "little red schoolhouse" has been a serious obstacle to educational progress in this country, is Fannie W. Dunn of Columbia Versity said today in an addspecific at consolidation during the last quarter of a century, she said, nearly 200,000 one-teacher schools remain in the United States. It was hoped to reduce this number to 40,000.

"Since so large a proportion of our population is now receiving its education in schools of this type, and since it appears that a considerable number will continue its education in schools of this type, and since it appears that a considerable number will continue to depend on them, it is proper to consider them as a distinct agents of education, rather than to the programs, Miss Duns said.

donstructive programs." Miss Dunn said.

"It is urgently important to consider their contribution to education in the past and their potentialities and limitations as educational agencies for the future. When all has been done that can be done in the way of reorganization or invention of new materials and methods of instruction and supervicion for these small rural schools, when their potentialities have been realized, and when their limitations have been counteracted, we must ask wherein lies the future service of the one-teacher school. Americanization Hampered THOSTON, July 5.—More importants than the Americanization of the immigrant is the preservation of American principles for Americans Dr. Albert Shiels, teachers college, Columbia University, said in an address today before the department of immigrant education, National Education Association.

Actional Education Associated Press is to be regulated because it is in a foreign language; it methods and devices of police supervision and registration are to be introduced like those that have been the plague of life in European aristocractes—all under the guise of assimilation—the cost to ourselves is too high, Dr. Shiels and "Once initiated it will be fome easy to extend these permicious practices to American citizens, however alien they are to zens, however alien they are to our institutions. GOVERNOR WILL BE  ARRAIGNED TODAY

OKMULGEE, Okla. July 5.—Arraignment of Governor J. B. A. Robertson of Oklahoma on a charge of accepting a bribe to permit a state bank to operate when he knew it to be insolvent was scheduled in District Court here today. Seventeen wiler men, prominent in banking circles in Oktaulgee, indicted with the governor on March 22 after a sweeping grand jury investigation into alleged irregularities in the state banking system, also were up for arraignment. OKMULGEE, Okla. July 5 .- Ar-

presented during the proceedings today by Governor Robertson's Counsel.

Chief interest in the proceedings centered in the probable dates upon which the trials would be set. The cases are on the docket for trial fring the present term of court but with other criminal business to be disposed of observers expressed doubt that they would not be reached this term.

Summer Time Help

These hot days of mid-summer are specially trying for th emother of small children. The kiddies are restless, there is an excessive amount of laundry work to superintend, an ever increasing pile of mending to be done, hot-wheather meals are a daily problem—in fact, there is no end to the things that must be done each day.

Why not get a maid, you say? Well, to be frank about it, the lessened family income does not seem to permit such a luxury right now.

able high school or college girl who would be mighty glad of the chance to earn a little towards her school expenses? There are dozens of such girls that you can secure, and at small expensegirls with whom you can trust the children and secure a little rest and recreation for yourself.

Let the Want Ads help you secure such help and secure it right away.
